Wilson, then a School Board member, to help at-risk minority youths ages 9 to 19 who are mentored by adult role models. The dropout prevention intervention program serves 89 schools in Miami-Dade County, with 5,000 volunteers and more than 8,000 youth participants referred to the program by school principals, counselors, teachers or parents. The program guides minority boys from boyhood to manhood and sends them to college. For more information call (305) 995-2451.
